THE IXPLINATION HE GIVES OF HIS SPEECH IN THE LORDS.

g, Sare Ilia Language Was Misinterpreted by Enemies of the Irlah Canne-The Com-mont Can No Longer Be Thwarted by a Nor-Elective Body of Legislators, EGINBURGH, March 17.-Lord Rosebery was sectived in this city to-day by cheering crowds. Thousands filled the streets on his route from the railroad station to the Corn Exchange. More than 5,000 Liberals had gathered at the exchange to hear him speak, and they greeted sim with thunderous applause as he entered

The most important part of the Premier's address was his explanation of the statement gade by him on March 13 in the House of Lerds concerning his attitude to home rule. When I spoke in the House of Lords," he

mid. "I declared with frankness and perspicutrmy attitude to home rule. Unfortunately, en my words was not what I meant when I uttered them in the House of Lords. If rightly interpreted my words was not what I meant when I uttered them in the House of Lorda If rightly interpreted, my words must have carried the conviction to the heart of England that what I said was a truism, although not at all in the sense in which the Unionists interpreted it. The advocates of home rule know that if they were to wait for the predominating rots of England, they might never carry anything. The present Government have carried the farish Councils bill for England with the irish vote. It is not necessary to demand an laglish majority to carry a home rule bill or to best down the English vote in order to convice the English people of the justice of Irish home rule. ICheers.

The situation to which he had referred, Lord Bosebery continued, was a familiar one. The House of Lorda for instance, might be said to have England at its back, yet in ordinary strees of the country just now the people had rish, ten to one, against the upper chamber. Why his words had been misinterpreted was quite evident. A certain party sought to sow dissension between the Irish and the Liberals. The organ of this party, the London Times, had willfully misrepresented his utterances.

After paying his respects to the Times, Lord Resebery and that he would leave the subject of Irish affairs, in which the Government policy had remained exactly as it was under Glastone, and would spare no efforts to secure its passage. The Cohent were determined to maintain the surgemacy of the navy as the best guarantee of the peace of Europe. He himself had often pointed out the dangers of a hereditary chamber. The Government must now face the vital danger of such a chamber, because the Commons could no longer be thwarted by the action of a non-elective body of legislators (Cheers,)

TENNIE CLAPLIN'S HUSBAND.

He to Defendant in a Suit for Breach of Promise and Seduction.

LONDON, March 17.—The trial of the action brought by Mrs. Holland against Sir Francis Cook, the husband of Tennie Claffin, sister Victoria Woodhull, for breach of promise and eduction was begun in the Court of Queen's Rench to-day. The plaintiff charges that Sir Francis Cook under a promise of marriage induced her to become intimate with him in his house at Richmond, the promise of marriage to be fulfilled when his wife should die. This, she says, occurred in 1870. She continued her relations with him, the promises being renewed from time to time, until, in 1880, she found herself in a delicate condition. Sir Francia, she alleges, compelled her to undergo Francia, she slieges, compelled her to undergo an operation, which although successful was almost fatal in its effects. In 1884 Lady Cook died, and in 1885 Sir Francis, disregarding his promise to the plaintiff, married Tennie Claffin. Sir Francis admits intimacy with the woman but tays he never promised to marry her, and had no intention of doing so. He always offered her money, and she invariably accepted it.

offered her money, and she invariably accepted it.

Mrs. Holland, the complainant, was called to the witness box. Questioned in regard to the operation alleged to have been performed upon her, she said she was unable to recall whether she berself or Sir Francis Cook had suggested it. These asked concerning her means of livelihood since her marriage to her present husband, she said that her husband had done no work since his marriage to her, and had had no money except what he obtained by applying from time to time to Sir Francis Cook in her behalf.

GLADSTONE'S FUTURE.

Bellef that He Will Yet Brappear in Poll-

Copyright, 1824, by the Called Press. LONDON, March 17.-Mr. Gladstone's season of rest at Brighton by no means implies that he has freed himself from the turmoll of polities. On the contrary, he is very much in evideace in the political trial now going on before the country. He keeps up regular communieation with the Ministers, advising them in all matters submitted to him, and has written to the Liberal whips that he is in readiness at any time to respond to their summons to take part in any important divi-sion or debate should his presence in the House of Commons become necessary. The convic-tion is growing in the inner Ministerial circle that the Grand Old Man's retirement is not faal. The general expectation is that he will make occasional reappearances in Parliament pending the result of the operation which is to be performed upon his eye.

DA GAMA WANTS TO TRAVEL.

He Applies for a Portuguese Steamer to Take His Party to Buesos Ayres. LISBON, March 17 .- The Lisbon press assert that the insurgent Admiral da Gama has asked for the use of a Portuguese steamer to take himself and his officers to Buenos Ayres. The Captain of the Portuguese corvette Mindello cabled later from Rio de Janeiro that Mindello cabled later from Rio de Janelro that Admiral Da Gama and other insurgent officers had taken refuge aboard the Mindello.

Washington, March 17.—Secretary Herbert received a cable from Admiral Henham this afternoon saying that the San Francisco was cashing and would proceed north immediately. The Secretary things this despatch must have been sent late on Friday, and that the San Francisco has left Rio by this time and is fairly on her way to the Mosquito Coast. The State Department had no despatch from Minister Thompson to-day.

Told Lies About Statesmen.

Bestin, March 17. - The trial of the actions against Plack, Schwenhagen, and Ewald, brought by Chancellor von Caprivi and Finance Minister Dr. Miquel for criminal libel, was ended to-day in the conviction of the prisoners. Plack was condemned to twentyone months' imprisonment, Schwenhagen to the year, and Ewald to three months. The terms of Plack and Schwenhagen were reduced by six months, to compensate for the time they spent in sail before their trial. Plack was charged with issuing a pamphlet slandering Dr. Miquel, and Schwenhagen with writing articles vilifying Chancellor von Captivi and other members of the Ministry. The effects of Ewald, who is a brokeslier, was in selling the objectionable publications.

Petroleum in Bul's at Shaughal.

SHANGHAL March 17. - The arrival of the first petroleum tank steamer at this port and the consequent action of the customs authorities have created a great deal of excitement here. The authorities will not permit the landing of the authorities will not permit the landing of befroleum in bulk, and a protest has been made by the Russian, German, and British Consuls, who have been instructed by their feeperitve Governments to insist on the landing of the oil. Trouble is expected to result from the customs authorities' action.

THE IMPEROR'S TRIUMPH. Chagein of the Conservatives Over the Rus-

Comprishe, 1854 by the Futbul From

BERLIN, March 17.-The ratification of the Russian-German treaty by the Reichstag has left the Government completent and the Conservatives bitter. The men who led the Opposition in the fight against the new grain tariff do not acknowledge that they have been permanently defeated, but threaten ultimately to bring the Chancellor to terms. They began balancing accounts by amending several of the minor budgetary proposals in nearly every parliamentary sitting.

The most conspicuous target of the defeated groups is undoubtedly Dr. Miquel's scheme of financial reforms. The fate of this scheme is now more uncertain than ever, in view of the fact that the proposed tax on checks and receipts has been condemned in the Parliamentary Committee by a vote of 19 to C. It was supposed that, whatever might befall the rest of the scheme, this tax would have a fair chance of acceptance, notably in comparison with the wine and tobacco taxen. The friends of the Government admit that the action of the committee augura ill for the

Of all the Opposition the titled Conservative andowners sulk most persistently. They seem little disposed to give way to the blan dishments of the Emperor and Dr. Miquel and return to their traditional policy of backing the Chancellor against the Radicals and Social Democrate. Without the Conservatives, however, the whole financial scheme must be re east or thrown over, and the imperial Treasury must be left in its old condition of de

The immediate effect of the new treaty will be to boom the export trade, which has been almost stagnant since the beginning of the tariff war last summer. Already signs of activity are shown in the Industrial centres and ports most deeply interested in the Russian market. It was expected that the Bourse would benefit largely. The predictions o heavy dealings in Russian securities have not been realized. On the contrary, there has been a strong reaction on recent purchases, as speculators believe no considerable husines will be possible before the Reichsbank obtain a degree cancelling the old Bismarckian prohibition of advances on Russian loans.

The battle of the standards is likely to be resumed in both Landtag and Reichstag immediately after the Easter recess. The text of the debate in the Reichstag will be Chansellor von Caprivi's announcement that the Government intends to make a new issue of 22,000,000 marks in silver. Herr von Kardorff and Count von Mirbach in the Reichstag and Dr. Arendt in the Landtag will lead the attack of the bimetallists upon the Chancellor and his proposal. They will oppose the bill on the ground that the issue should not be made before the Silver Commission have Unlaked their inquiry and the silver market has shown some signs of returning stability. They say that under the existing currency laws of the empire such an issue would have little or no effect upon the silver price, and would only complicate the whole question. By the law of 1874 the amount of silver money in circulation was fixed at 10 marks, or about $2.50 per head of the population. At present 462,000,000 marks are in circulation. The Chancellor's plan is to coin the new issue out of old thalers, thus raising the amount in circulation to 404,000,000 for more than 50,000,000 population. Even then the silver money per capita will be below the sum authorized by law.

The Conservatives and Free Conservatives have greatly strengthened the bimetallists, and the whole silver party in and out of Parliament is showing unwonted power and activity. issue would have little or no effect upon the William Liebknecht, leader of the Social Democrats, has elicited from the Military Weekly, official organ of the officers' corps, a chaffing criticism of his proposal to transform the standing army into militia. In giving notice that after the recess he would formally move this change, Liebknecht said that his plan would provide for a military force thoughton, (000 strong. The Weekly says:

"These many militons would need cavairy, guns, and a commissariat ready for an unexpected outbreak of war. This would imply the purchase of 1,200,000 horses, involving thus for the cavairy alone some 100,000,000 marks annually above the present estimates. While with the colors, the enormous masses of men would have to be paid and fed. The additional expense on this account would be 420,000,000 marks for each month under arms. The clothing and arming of the 8,500,000 militia would require 1,850,000,000 marks. If the militia were to receive only the crudest kind of drill, fully three times the present number of officers and non-commissioned sergeants would be necessary for the work. A special army corps would be needed to keep the register for the mobilization up to data. Despite all this, a certain number of regiments would have to be paid for remaining always under arms in order to ward off the first attack of the hostile neighbor."

IN A SCULPTOR'S STUDIO.

Magnificent Modelling and Chicoting by the The reporter, while strolling about the east side of the city sacking quaint, curious, and pleasing sights, found one of the interto his heart's delight in the studio of those masters of their art, the Brothers Fueigns, Italian sculptors, at USB First avenue, and he stood rapt, spellbound, before this exquisite illustration of what the chisel, under the touch of genius, may evolve from cold, insensate marble.

This delicious bit of sculpture is called "The Orphan Boy." The subject is charming in its very simplicity—a boy, life size, nude with the exception of sort drapery about the loins, half sliting on a rock in a posture of childish innocence, and holding in graceful careless—bess a mandolin against his hip. It is from the finest and purest of Carrara marble, perfect in conception, marvelious in execution. The very soul of the artist is in it. Technically the work is flawless, but however one may admire and be fascinated by the faithfulness of the sculptor in that respect, it is the undefinable something that pervades it that draws one to it and holds him in rapt centemplation of it. It is not the work of well-trained talent. It is a creation of genius.

This remarkable specimen of the sculptor's art was to have been put on exhibition at the World's Fair at Chicago last year, but it arrived in this country too late for entry among the exhibits. The Mesers Fueigns have been offered by a well-known art house a sum for the statue which would seem to be most enticing, but the artists have declined it.

A Weman's Wooderful Discovery.

Since Mme. Julia Mays, the widely known and wonderfully successful facial electrician, opened the handsomely spoointed suite of offices she now occupies on the fourth floor of the Simpson block, No. 54 West Twenty-third street, unward of 1,000 ladies have called to inquire about her great discovery, and a number have been treated for facial blomishes.

Mme. Mays removes scars, birthmarks, small-pox pittings, winkles, and the effects on the face of the ravages of time, in one or two treatments, and her work has been endorsed by leading physicians and prominent society ladies in this city and Chicago, where she formerly resided. Dr. Densmore, the author of "How Nature Cures." in a letter to the public pronounces Mme. Mays's method of treating the face the most wonderful discovery in medical science of the past twenty-five years. Ladies who have long since lost youthful beauty, and whose faces are wrinkled and disfigured, are made to look as they did when they emerged from girihood into budding womanhood in early life. One or two treatments a week, seclusion from iriends, and the work is accomplished. Mme. Mays is a benefactor of the human race. A Woman's Wonderful Discovery.

A Blessing to Cooks,

All cooks know that no reast can come in perfection from the oven unless the meat has been subjected faithfully to the indispensable process of basting. The old and prevalent way of doing this has been from time out of mind the bate noir of cooks, especially the housewire. The time it took, and the necessity of watchfulness to have it done properly, have taken away many a wife s appetite for the pulcy joint when it came to be served. If any cook adheres now to the old way of basting meat, he or she deserves to suffer for all its annoyances. for here is James Stroud with a household blessing which they have only to adopt to be saved all their trouble. Mr. Stroud has patented and put on the market a Self-Rasting Roasting Fan which does away with the old method. It is not an experiment. It has been tried by the best professional cooks, every one of whom pronounces it the perfection of aids in cooking. Hundrede of every one of whom pronounces it the p fection of aids in cocking. Hundreds housewives who have taken advantage of t stroud Self-Easter deciare that they ne-knew before that there was genuine please in getting a roast ready for the table.

It consists of two pans, one resting above the other, with space between for building water. The upper pan, wherein the meat is placed, is provided with a series of ridges, also a row of holes around the sides from which the cacaping ateam comes in contact with the contents of the pan. The ridges are for the purpose of elevating the meat from the bottom of the nan and allowing the hot air to pass beneath it theroughly browning it on the hottom as well as on the top. This arrangement obviates the necessity of turning the meat, so that when placed in the oven no further attention is required. The basting is done by the steam. It renders the meat tender and juicy. The self-baster may be seen at Mr. James Stroud's place of business, J. 285 Broadway.—Adv.

WILL DO WITHOUT VAN COIT. Milhelland Organizes the Eighth-The State

The attitude which ax Postmaster Van Cott will hereafter assume in the Republican local row was determined at a meeting held at 64 Washington square, south, last night. The Platt-Milholland organization held off from organizing Mr. Van Cott's Assembly district, the Eighth, because it was expected that the ex-Postmaster would eventually make up his mind to cast his fortunes with that faction. As the date fixed for final enrollment approached, and he had not done so, Mr. Milholand proceeded to organize the district on his own account, with the help of Henry C. Piercy. Frank Carroll, and John C. Dodd. These gentiemen mustered a big concourse of Republicans last night, and Mr. Milholland addressed them, telling them that his organization did not care for Mr. Van Cott and was going to get along without him.

Mr. Milholland was informed yesterday that another effort was made at the meeting of the West Side Republican Club hast Tuesday evening to adopt a resolution favorable to the Committee of Thirty, and that, with the aid of Police Justice Taintor and Alexander Caldwell, it was defeated by an overwhelming majority, the vote being more than two to one against the committee. Mr. Caldwell, who was elected Treasurer of the old Republican County Committee at the February meeting, has resigned not only as Treasurer, but as a member of the committee.

Mayor Green of Binschamton, President of the State League of Republican Clubs, has communicated with Mr. Milholland on the subject of certain clubs in this city which are friendly to Jacob M. Patterson or the Committee of Thirty plan, and which are said to harbor an intention of resigning from the League, Mr. Milholland assured President Green that he will furnish him with half a dozen Republican clubs for every one which resigns. telling them that his organization di

AUJOURNMENT IN A MONTH.

Senator Saxton Thinks Everything Will Be

Out of the Way by April 19, Senator Saxton, President pro tem, of the sembly the belief that the present Legislature vill adjourn sine die on April 19 or 20.

"There seems to be little in the way of se-curing final adjournment on the date named by the Speaker," said he yesterday. "Every-thing depends on the spassage of the Supply bill, and that should be prepared and passed by that time. Some delay may be occasioned by the iliness of Chairman Ainsworth of the Assembly Committee on Ways and Means, but the feession need not be prolonged much berond the dates mentioned, if at all."

The possibility of a deadlock over partisan legislation which Mr. Flatt wants was not acknowledged by the Senator, though he admitted that there is at present some objection to certain measures by those who are opposed to the regular Republican machine of the state. "The only measures before the Legislature in which the people are particularly interested," said he, "are those affecting the ballot and the rights of the voter, and I think we can dispose of them before April 10."
